Knight Marshal, Unser Hafen

from the chronicler

Since many in the Barony have traveled South to War, I have dug into the archives and found this account of the first group of intrepid adventures from the first year of the Tosspot. Back then, this was the Shire of Stone Haven. Still incipient and newly formed in October of the previous year.

In my years in the Barony, I have heard few accounts of trips quite as event filled as this one. Our own Baron Sir Kevin is mentioned is this tale.

Should any one care to share their tales as Lady Morrigan did, I would be more than happy to print it.

In Service,
Robin of Bristol

The Saga of the (Almost) Lost Shire

We set out on our journey
One cold, clear winter's day;
Eleven shire-fold bold and brave
All certain of our way.
'Twas of to fight the Desert War
To win both glory and fame,
But wars and fighting pale beside
Events that soon became.

Aasa drove the Longboat
A large and trusty craft
With farspeaker installed
We thought to war off
Some mishap.

Fionn Craig had a trusty Aardvark,
Small, pale, but armored well,
He too installed a magic voice
So things would all run well.

The middle wagon was my own
A fair and sturdy beast.
Her name was Elda-hrududu
and she nae spoke, just ran.

The journey ran for miles and miles,
Eleven hundred total.
Our heads were filled with dreams of war,
So singing we did go.
Somewhere past Al-Barran we found
The Aardvark bleeding badly.
We staunched the flow and bought
A case of oil to keep it happy.

Three hours from our battle
We had found another problem.
The Longboat's heart was skipping beats
And she was breathing rather badly.

We made it to the war-sit
And found to our dismay
Whoever named the war-site
Had no fancy tale to say.
For 'twas indeed a desert
Flat and barren, dusty.
Fifteen hundred people camped
On forty acres only.
Our reservations were mislaid
Fire-chariots everywhere.
And no one acted chivalrous
They hadn't time to care.

When on the morrow all the Shire
Set out to kill Caid folk,

Five hours passed in desert dust
Before a blade was blooded.
Caid would not accept a blow
No matter how it fell.
So many injured on the day
Fate bode for true war
Not just a game.
No sport was had in this hot feud
And grievous was the battle
But in th end it was a draw
Save that real bones should rattle.

House Rolling Thunder filled the air
With drumbeats night and day
And soon we heard them in our sleep
Not sure if they did play.
The dust was think on everyone
Dogs, children, tents, armor.
Eight wood pavilions housed
The waste of all those camped there.
Mundanes were in abundance
As if they'd been invited
We found a sign, ten apace
"Bring wife and kids and see us."
Are we a showe? A freak parade:
I wondered as I struggled.
This seems not right for I cannot
So I traveled back to Ireland
And I would be invisible
I hope, so I would not disturb them.

A little fight the second day,
A welcome sunset, salad, steaks.
We packed the chariots so to journey to the Shire
By dust next day.

Alas! But Murphy, god of mishap
Waited for us on our way
For the Longboat, our dear Longboat bit the dust that evil day.
For three hours valiant Kevin
Worked and slaved to save her life
But at midnight came a tow-truck
And packed closely we did ride.

In the Barony of Atenveldt
A Knight did give us ease
And provided transportation
To replace the poor deceased.
On we traveled to the border
Sure our troubled they were past
When the law man stopped our party
Saying, "We don't want not gang fightin
Er duelin' in New Mexico."

We were passed on at this remark
And post-haste urged to speed

When north of Albarran
Did Murphy do an evil deed
Murder foul it was, for Aardvark
Bled to death there on the road -
We had yet ten hours to travel
So we tied her up in tow.

A the mountain's edge we halted
In the sheriff's flashing glare
Brave Aase got a ticket,
She'd not dimmed the torches' glare.

In the shire if Trinidad agian
We were pulled off the road
And thought we must abandon Aardvark
But her fate we did not know.
Directed North to Dragonspine
We thought to put to rest
Poor Aardvark at the castle
Of Dafydd - but not quite yet.

For as we did pull the Aardvark
Up the catle's encroahcing hill
The tow-cable burst asunder
Our hopes dashing wildly - nill.

It was five A.M. on Tuesday
When we got things sqared away
Thirty-six hours spend in travel
Which should not have spent a day.
One group headed for the Shire
And passed Elda on the way
Cornac called me sometime after.
They'd had a flat while on the way.

But these were not all our misfortunes,
As I am sure you've learned
Guy sat on a jumping cactus,
And his ankle with axe did hurt,
And a cough has made the rounds
Of all but three of our fair number
And poor Elda lost her eyesight
In a valiant pushing wonder.

Well we've learned some things on this trip
And I'll not recount those here
I just hope you can believe this tale
Of the Almost-Lost Shire

Morrigan du H'longardail, AS XVII

40th Year Celebration

Kingdom of An Tir
May 5 through May 15, 2006

Come ye one and all to a 40th Year Celebration of the Society for Creative Anachronism in the great Kingdom of An Tir! This glorious revel will take place in Randle, Washington from May 5 through May 15, 2006, sponsored by the Shire of Fire Mountain Keep and the Barony of Glymm Mere.

The 300 acre site is surrounded by the Cowlitz River, a forest, stunning mountain views, and is five miles from the nearest neighbor. Planned activities include equestrian games, falconry, competitions in archery, arts and sciences and rapier, tournaments, woods battles, tavern, pied piper diversions, a vibrant merchants' row, and much more.

Mundane needs can be met in the nearby towns. See this website for local amenities. Please note: the site fee is split into two parts, an event fee and a camping fee. For your convenience and a faster trip thru the gate, the camping portion and any applicable merchant fees can be pre-paid via mail or paid online. Both merchants and populace must be pre-registered by April 15, 2006. Participants who register after April 15, 2006 will still have the option to pay online, but we will not accept checks if postmarked after April 15, 2006 nor will we accept checks at the gate.

Gentles wishing to offer assistance or to schedule activities may contact the appropriate members of the autocrat team through the website. Although this is technically a "branch" event, many of the officers of An Tir and members of the populace throughout the Kingdom are dedicating themselves to making this one of the most spectacular and memorable experiences since the Kingdom of An Tir hosted the 30th Year Celebration! Join us, won't you? We'll see YOU at the event!
